New life for Beechwood Church

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

When was the last time you went inside Beechwood Church? The Historical Society invites one and all to come have a look this Saturday, March 11 from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. The open house will serve as a kickoff for the society's capital campaign to buy the church.

Though the building has changed over the years - new offices added in the rear, the basement painted lime green for youth programming - the sanctuary still retains its austere historical charm, with tall windows on both sides and a simple wooden cross hanging behind the pulpit.

The Society plans to keep the sanctuary as a meeting space and venue for concerts and speakers, or even weddings - someone recently called to arrange a ceremony there. The Society already has monthly speakers and plans to expand that programming to help fund the church's upkeep.

The main attraction will be an historical collection downstairs in the former fellowship hall. The society hopes to remodel this space to accommodate two old hand-pump fire pumper trucks and other police and fire memorabilia.

For lack of anywhere to display them, the antique fire trucks have been stored in barns for several decades and were recently restored. Meanwhile, the church's rear offices are fated to become permanent displays featuring things like old farming equipment that have been in storage or on display in places they don't belong, such as the Maritime Museum. Beechwood was once the farming section of town, so it makes sense to return these artifacts to their neighborhood

Selectmen: Inn noise allegations were sound

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

After a five-hour hearing Tuesday night, March 7, the Board of Selectmen has made up its mind about alleged noise violations at the Cohasset Harbor Inn. Two entertainment license violations were found. The board is still determining what consequences the Inn will face.

The finding was in regard to incidents that took place on Sunday evenings in September 2016.

The board readily dismissed a single complaint from Sept. 17, since it was quickly addressed and there were no further issues that night.

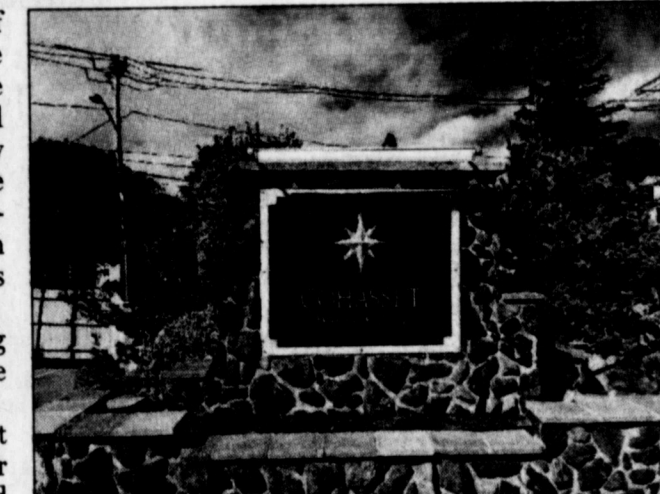

Members further agreed not to fault the Inn for events that happened after 11 p.m. on the evening of Sept. 25, when police responded to a third wave of complaints and found guests who had previously been at the inn for the wedding reception loitering around the American Legion Hall and Veterans Park.

But the three remaining incidents on Sept. 25 were not so clear-cut.

The first call came in at 7:04 p.m., about an hour before the Inn is required to close its patio doors to keep noise inside. Due to the volume of the music and the fact that it was a school night, neighbors reached out to the police, and the inn cooperated in closing the doors ahead of schedule.

The second call came in shortly after 8 p.m., after the patio doors must be shut. Side-by-side audio footage from the first and second incidents suggests that not all doors had been re-opened after the first incident, but some had. Police responded, and the doors were closed a second time.

SCHOOLS

Budget balanced

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

The schools presented a no-drama draft budget to the School Committee last week, March 1. It matched the Town Manager's recommended budget down to the penny, at $18,895,656 for the whole district.

Though it required them to think outside the box, the principals all reported being happy with the arrangements.

"We had some wants and needs that were delayed last year," said Superintendent Louise Demas. "I told the principals, 'Be as creative as you can to meet the needs of the children we serve, within the parameters of the dollar amount.'"

The principals were eager to share how their proposed budgets would support the goals outlined in the district's five-year plan: to invest in quality educators, to teach equivalent content to different kinds of learners, to support the social and emotional well-being of students, to improve school safety and security, and to improve communication between administration, faculty, parents, and taxpayers.

Deer Hill Principal Jennifer DeChiara plans to hold the course as existing programs gain positive traction. The school will not need to add or subtract any faculty based on the size of the incoming third-grade class. And going digital has allowed them to save on certain materials and office supplies - although it has also introduced some new costs, such as subscriptions to digital tools like Brain Pop.

DeChiara said that the school is going to have to make some adjustments to science content and approach based on evolving

POLICE/FIRE

Cohasset Harbor crash not suspicious

The death of a 38-year-old Cohasset man when his 2016 GMC pickup truck entered Cohasset Harbor early Wednesday (March 8) does not appear to be suspicious, police said. The identity of the sole occupant of the vehicle was Keith P. Herzog, 38, of Cohasset.

At 4:45 a.m., Cohasset police and fire responded to an OnStar alert, a General Motors device that provides in-vehicle security, that the truck was taking on water. A resident of Border Street reported hearing the crash and seeing headlights.

OnStar gave officials coordinates showing it about 50 feet into the water, off a dock near the end of Lighthouse Lane. There were marks on the dock and small boat that was damaged in the crash. The town harbor-master was also called to respond. Police were able to look at video footage from the Harbormaster's Office that confirmed the truck was submerged. The truck traveled the length of the Cohasset Harbor dock before entering the water.

the Scituate Fire Department, and the Plymouth County Technical Rescue Team worked through the morning and the vehicle was removed from the water at 9:48 a.m.

The Office of the Chief Medical Examiner has accepted Herzog for autopsy. Massachusetts State Police Crime Scene Services documented the scene. The investigation by Cohasset Police and Massachusetts State Police detectives attached to the Norfolk District Attorney's office is ongoing, but there is no evidence of foul play at this time.

UPDATE

Sleepy town election shaping up so far

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

The upcoming Annual Town Election remains mostly a contest among incumbents. In fact, it can hardly be called a contest at all, with only one newcomer pulling nomination papers so far. That's John DeLorenzo, running for one of three five-year slots on the Recreation Commission.

There is a new opening on the Board of Library Trustees. Following the departure of member Roger Lowe, there is now a two-year unexpired term to fill in addition to three full terms. Incumbents Stephen Brown, Mary Lou Lawrence, and Carolyn Coffey have each pulled papers for another three-year term.

The Town Clerk's office has certified papers from Kevin McCarthy, running for another three-year term on the Board of Selectmen; Rolf Gjestby, running for another three-year term on the Water Commission; and Carol St. Pierre, who is running for another three-year term as town clerk.

Other contenders include Dan Evans for Moderator, Wayne Sawchuk and John Beck for the Sewer Commission (Sawchuk for a three-year term and Beck to fill a one-year unexpired term), Diane Kennedy for the Board of Selectmen, Robin Lawrence for the Board of Health, and Erik Potter, associate member of the Planning Board now running for a five-year term as a full member.

Want to mix things up a little bit? Nomination papers will be available from the Town Clerk's office through Thursday, March 23. The last day to submit papers to the Board of Registrars for certification will be Monday, March 27. Available positions are as follows:

- Selectmen for Three Years (2)
- Moderator for Three Years (1)
- Town Clerk for Three Years (1)
- School Committee for Three Years (1)
- Trustees Paul Pratt Memorial Library for Three Years (3)
- Trustee Paul Pratt Memorial Library for Two Years to fill an unexpired term (1)
- Assessor for Three Years (1)
- Board of Health for Three Years (1)
- Planning Board for Five Years (1)
- Recreation Commission for Five Years (3)
- Sewer Commission for Three Years (1)
- Sewer Commission for one year to fill an unexpired term (1)
- Water Commission for Three Years (1)

Note that, due to changes at the state level, there are no positions currently available on the Housing Authority. The membership has been reduced from five members to four, one of which will be elected by tenants of the Housing Authority.

Previously, the tenant representative was appointed by the governor. The current representative will hold the position until the state develops a procedure for electing a new one.

POLICE BEAT

By Mary Ford
Mford@wickedlocal.com

MVA

Police responded to a two-car crash on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) by Crocker Lane on Thursday (March 2) around 9 a.m.

A 2007 Toyota sedan, operated by an 18-year-old Weymouth woman, was attempting to make a left out of Crocker Lane to head north on Route 3A. Police said she cut off a 2016 Honda Pilot, driven by a 46-year-old Hingham woman, who was headed south.

The cars collided and both were towed. There were no injuries but the Weymouth woman was cited for failure to yield the right of way, police said.

Hit and run

A 26-year-old Marshfield man reported to police on Friday afternoon (March 3) that someone had struck his 2015 Toyota Sienna while it was parked at Starbuck's sometime between 6 a.m. and noon that morning.

There were black marks on and moderate damage to the rear bumper of the Toyota, police said. There were no witnesses.

Break-in

A 29-year-old Cohasset woman reported a past break-in to the house she shares with her boyfriend in a neighborhood off Route 3A on Friday (March 1). The door was kicked in but nothing appeared to be missing, police said.

Dropped off

John's Car Care called police to run the plate of a 2008 BMW in his parking lot on Monday morning (Feb. 27). The owner, who was located, had not made prior arrangements and had dropped the car off for service before the shop opened, so the mystery was solved.

Dispute

A customer and an off-duty firefighter from another town got into a dispute at the Stop & Shop gas station on Monday afternoon (Feb. 27) when the customer left the engine running while refueling. The attendant called and the incident was logged.

Tires flat

A 76-year-old Forest Avenue woman let police know on Tuesday (Feb. 28) that she hit a log that fell off a truck on Route 3A with her 2006 Toyota Corolla that resulted in her getting two flat tires. Police believe the incident actually occurred in Hingham.

MV complaint

A school bus driver took the plate number down of a 2007 Mitsubishi Eclipse that did not stop as required while the bus was loading students on South Main Street near the Scituate line on Tuesday morning (Feb. 28).

The bus driver provided the plate and a good description of the car. An officer located the car parked on Depot Court and identified the operator as a 34-year-old Lynn man who works for a tree company. He did not have a driver's license until a passport. His boss arrived to take possession of the car.

The Lynn man is being summoned to court to face the charges of unlicensed operation and failure to stop for a school bus, police said.

MV complaint

On Tuesday afternoon (Feb. 28) around 3 p.m., a cell caller reported a dark SUV did not stop for a school bus. The offending driver had a dog on his lap. Police did not have anything else to go on.

POLAR PLUNGE

Special Olympics support appreciated

By Taffy Nothnagle

The 19th Annual Polar Plunge for Special Olympics Massachusetts (SOMA) at Nantasket Beach (our largest Plunge!) took place last Saturday, and a great time was had by over 500 especially brave plungers (despite the record cold weather!).

Teams came from high schools and colleges, businesses, and Special Olympics' community programs, with men and women ranging from age 8 to two hearty plungers over 80! The boardwalk railing was packed with several hundred spectators enjoying the spectacle, and cheering enthusiastically for the Plungers! (A total of 1,600 Plungers across the State including 500 Mass. H.S. Student Council leaders, plus Law Enforcement officers, athletes, coaches, and volunteers raised some 10% of SOMA's annual budget!)

The events began with the fun Costume Parade/competition with outfits ranging from "Heavy Metal Rockers" to "Plunging Pirates," and "Polar Bear Patriots Fans".

Then at noon came the wild, adrenalin-pumping mad dash of the brave Plungers through the 20 degree gale force wind, and into the frigid 40 degree surf. All survived the icy water, but didn't hang out long in the bitter wind when they emerged! We were protected by friends from the U.S. Coast Guard in dry suits standing guard in the surf, with a CG rescue craft offshore. (They also volunteer in warmer seasons as Unified Partners in our SOMA Sailing Program!)

The most important result is that, so far, all our plunges broke last year's $355,000 record, including $165,000 at Nantasket Beach, to support our year-round training, and 130 competitions in 23 sports for over 12,000 athletes and partners in Massachusetts. Special Olympics doesn't charge our athletes or their families to participate - it's free - so these funds are vitally important. Even with the help of 10,000 volunteers, it costs some $500 per year to support each athlete!

Our 25 member "South Shore Mariners Team" again won the state-wide award for Highest Fund-raising Team, raising a new record of over $39,000 so far, with more donations still arriving. The 25 member S.S. Mariners Team included plungers from Cohasset: Geoff Chamberlain, Elizabeth Laas, Jessica MacDonald, Betts Murray, Steve Myers, Jay and Jeff Nothnagle, Tucker O'Day, Pat Plante, Despite high winds and below zero wind-chill factors, close to 500 people took the Polar Plunge to benefit Special Olympics at Nantasket Beach, Saturday, March 4.

Brian Stewart, and Doug Yeager. The funds raised here come back to our local Mariners program which has 110 athletes, ages 8 to 77, from seven South Shore towns from Milton to Duxbury, and helps to fund area, section and state-wide competitions.

If you haven't yet had a chance, it's not too late, so please support our athletes with a donation! Mail a check payable to Special Olympics to your favorite plunger, or go on-line to our secure website to donate at: www.nantasketplunge.kintera.org.

Again, a sincere "Thank You" from your local South Shore Mariners team to all of you who pledged, Plunged, and supported this wonderful organization that builds physical fitness and healthy athletes, and most importantly, develops the self-confidence, and self-esteem that lets them far exceed the expectations of others!

HOW TO HELP

St. Pat's T-Shirts support scholarships

The Cohasset Fire Department's Local 2804 is now selling St. Patrick's Day T-shirts.

In keeping with the spirit of supporting our local businesses, the firefighters have teamed up with Cohasset's own Goodwin Graphics for the t-shirts. Proceeds from the t-shirts will help Cohasset Local 2804 continue its college scholarship program, and the many local charities that they continue to donate to.

The t-shirts can be purchased now at the Cohasset Fire Department or at Stop & Shop on March 11th and 12th from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. Price is $20 per t-shirt with sizes ranging from small to 2XL. They will accept cash, checks, or credit card. Checks can be made out to Local 2804. To pay by credit card, follow the link on Cohasset Firefighters Local 2804 Facebook page. CFD's Local 2804 thanks you for your continued support.

WILD COHASSET

Turtles are residents of town

LISEY GOOD

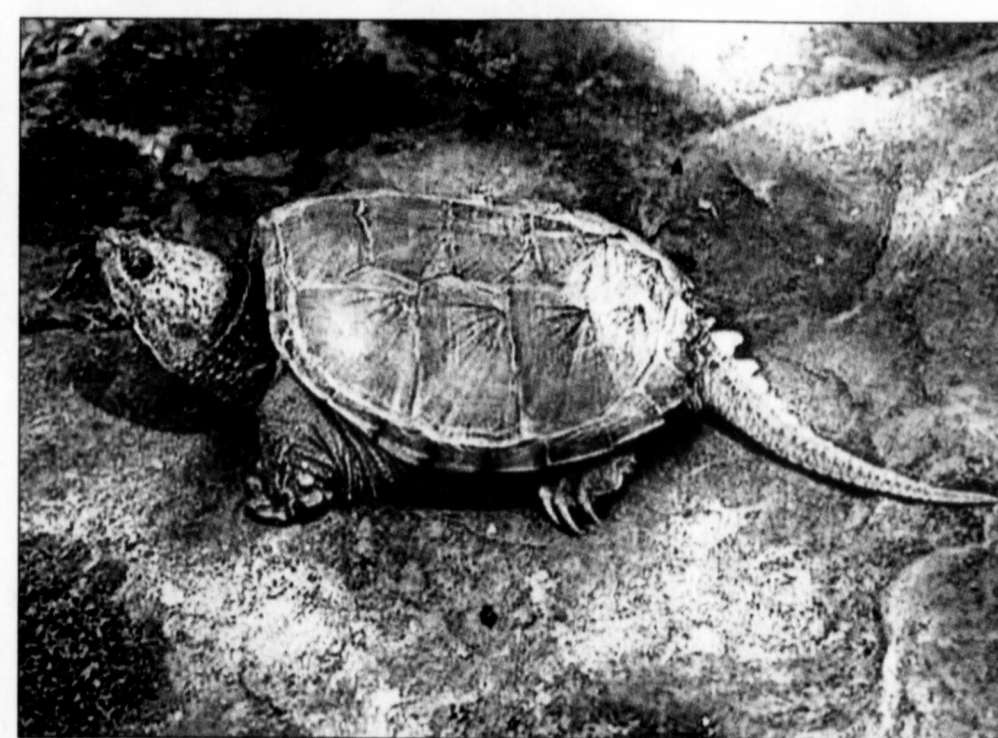

Let's start with my favorite turtle joke, courtesy of The New York Times: A turtle is leisurely crossing the road when he is mugged by two snails. When the police show up and ask him what happened, the shaken turtle replies, "I don't know. It just all happened so fast!"

For those of us who are charmed by these gentle but sluggish creatures, the good news is that Massachusetts is home to 10 native turtle species, and 8 of them can, in theory, be found in Cohasset. It is still possible here to catch a glimpse of one of these ancient-looking reptiles basking in the sun or slowly crossing your yard in search of food, a mate, a winter nesting spot, or a safe spot to lay eggs.

The bad news? Six of our turtles are on the endangered species list, due to habitat loss.

Cohasset turtles range from tiny and adorable (the highly endangered three-inch Bog Turtle) to downright intimidating (the more common Snapping Turtle, which can max out at nearly two feet long and a whopping 60 pounds). They spend most of their lives in or next to the water, in habitat like mud flats, marsh edges, vernal pools, ponds and lakes. They've even been spotted stranded in the little pond in our village green (hey, cub scouts in search of a project: we need to build a little wildlife ramp to allow turtles and other creatures to safely crawl out if they decide to take a swim).

Aside from a ramp, here are the top things we must do in Cohasset to help

You can tell a Snapping Turtle by its distinctive dragon-like ridged tail and triangular head. [COURTESY PHOTO]

Did you know?

- Box Turtles can live to be over 100 years old.
- Snapping Turtles start out as carnivores, eating fish, frogs or even small birds, but become more vegetarian as they age.
- When startled, the Eastern Musk Turtle emits a terrible smell, like a skunk.
- Each afternoon, Box Turtles use leaves and grasses to build a dome-like sleeping nest for the night.

turtles:

1. Preserve wetlands and wild spaces. Turtles don't like our houses and our manicured green lawns, no matter how pretty we think they are. Even a scrubby lot full of vines and weeds can be concealing "vernal pools," temporary, seasonal mini-ponds that nurture incredible diversity of wildlife (not just turtles, but fairy shrimp, wood frogs and mole salamanders). Simply put, new houses on wooded lots destroy important habitat.

2. Cut back the use of chemicals on your lawn, especially if you live next to a marsh or other wetland area. This is crucial, and frankly, it is something people should consider for their own family's health (including the health of their pets). These chemicals are deadly to reptiles and song birds and there are effective alternatives (see beyondpesticides.org).

3. Leave some of your yard wild. Tangled vines and scrub provide cover and habitat for many species of wildlife, and dead trees and rotting tree branches yield fungus and mushrooms, an important source of food for turtles. Most of your yard can look like a golf course, but if you leave wild, messy spaces at the edges, it can still nourish wildlife.

4. Help turtles cross roads. If you find a turtle in a safe place, like your garden, or the woods, do not touch it (unless it is upside down, in which case, you should put it upright on a flat surface). But if you see a turtle crossing a road and are able to safely reach it, you should carry it across the road to safety in the direction it was going.

The exception is with Snapping Turtles, whose long, flexible neck means its jaws can reach you no matter where you try to touch it, seriously hurting you. Use a stick to gently nudge the creature across. Never try to lift a Snapping Turtle by its tail (this can break its spine).

AROUND TOWN

Remember to turn clocks ahead!

Hey Cohasset, I am not quite sure how to start the column this week as we have lost two men known well throughout our town and it definitely has affected many emotionally in many ways.

I know there are others in town—especially those that are new and have not lived here for that long that may not know whom we have lost. I am not naming names but speaking more about life, moments, memories and loss that hits everyone in some way. I want to first let both families know how heartbroken and sad we are with the losses they have suffered this week.

We all need to remember to take each moment and treat it as if it is one more page in the current chapter of our book. Make the most of it filled with love, fun and excitement with family and friends, new adventures. Those moments are what fill our chapters and we never know in the book of life when something can change.

Keeping everyone in my heart, thoughts and holding my memories tight this week. Cohasset. 1-4-3

AUTHOR TALKS

On Christian Kracht's 'Imperium'

By Marylou Lawrence
Special to the Mariner

Some readers prefer a wild journey across the wine-dark sea while others prefer to recollect in tranquility along a quiet river. The next Sunday Author-Talk is a feast for the wild journey types. Translator Daniel Bowles will talk about Christian Kracht's "Imperium," a novel first published in German in 2012, when it became a best seller throughout Europe, and now, five years later, continues to garner attention throughout the world.

"Imperium" has been labeled a historic farce, a satire, a literary adventure of failed idealism, and just about every other genre imaginable, including a rollicking good read. In a story of less than 200 pages, Christian Kracht has confounded both critics and readers alike.

Protagonist August Engelhardt, based on a true character, sets off from his home in Nuremberg for the South Pacific in the early 1900s. He lands in New Guinea, purchases a small island with a coconut grove (he believed a pure diet of coconuts would enable him to reach a transcendent plane of spirituality) and sets about establishing his dream colony of the enlightened ones. His malnutrition eventually triggers a state of delusion, he succumbs to madness and leprosy, is kidnapped, becomes a zoo attraction, disappears, and is finally found several years later in a cave, kept alive by the nuts and grass he was able to scavenge.

Fill in the story line with a multitude of settings, incidents, and characters, including historical figures such as Franz Kafka, Thomas Mann, and Hermann Hesse, and the novel becomes richer or more convoluted or more eccentric, depending upon the reader's viewpoint.

As to the fictional Engelhardt, critics draw parallels between him—a vegan, a romantic, an artist type with a monomaniacal drive to establish a utopian society—and another German who came later, one far more reprehensible.

Christian Kracht is a Swiss novelist and journalist. His novels include "Faserland" and "I Will Be Here in Sunshine and in Shadow." "Imperium" has been translated into at least 25 other languages; Daniel Bowles translated the novel into English in 2015.

"Imperium" has been awarded the Wilhelm Raabe Literature Prize; in Switzerland, one of the four Literature Prizes of the Canton of Bern, the 2016 Helen and Kurt Wolff Translators Prize, and long listed for the 2017 International Dublin Literary Award. "The Huffington Post," which voted "Imperium"

Best Fiction of 2015, said, "Creepy, unsettling and morbidly funny, 'Imperium' takes the unlikely subjects of South Seas adventure and coconut eating to weave a satirical spin on ideological extremism." Henry Alford's review for "The New York Times" can be found at: www.nytimes.com. A wine and cheese reception will follow Mr. Bowles talk and Buttonwood Books will have "Imperium" available for purchase and signing. Admission is free.

LIFE AT CHS

Dodgeball tournament ready to start

Welcome back to another entry of Life at CHS. The school has been very busy the past week as it seems the second semester always hold more events, fundraisers, and extracurriculars that keep our students' minds off the stress of high school life. While many have their minds set on the upcoming spring season, some within the school still have many winter commitments and the on-and-off cold weather only further confuses everyone. The school is as busy as ever so let's discuss the most pressing topics.

Mr. Skipper was rescheduled last minute and took place last night due to the Girls' Basketball team making it to Div. 4 South Final. This game will be held tonight as they play against Cathedral, a school the football team is familiar with who we play in the EMAS Championship in 2014 during our state title year.

In respect to Mr. Skipper, at 7 p.m. last night the young men and women from CHS paraded contestants across the stage to see what upperclassman boy would become the elusive Mr. Skipper. Each act brought forth laughter in the crowd in order to sway the judges to vote for them.

Also, the raffle that occurred throughout the show could not have been possible without the generous donations from businesses around town. Without them, many beloved Cohasset traditions would not be able to run. I hope all that attended enjoyed myself and fellow classmates flaunt ourselves around the stage in order to make some money; not in the way you're thinking, though.

This upcoming week is the beginning of the CHS Dodgeball Tournament. With the brackets carefully planned out and posted, Wednesday will be the first round of the event. Teams will come to school that day dressed head-to-toe in their team's coordinated uniforms in order to intimidate their opponents.

As a fundraiser for the Student Council and subsequently the school itself, this event is one of the best Cohasset traditions in terms of excitement and fundraising. My personal team has made it to the semi-finals the past two years and we are looking to cap off our senior year run with a championship. As long as we remember the five D's of Dodgeball that Patches O'Houlihan taught us, that title will be ours.

The Boys Basketball team played Cathedral Tuesday night and although the opponent was formidable, our boys in blue put up a valiant fight. The only senior on the team, Liam O'Connell, played his final game for the team and had a great showing of athleticism and effort. Even though their tourney run is over, the fan section was dominant in their outing of support and costume wearing, something that will stand for many years to come.

Tune in next week to get an update on how my fan fares in the fan favorite Dodgeball Tournament. As always stay frosty Cohasset, GO BLUE!

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week. Immigration continues to be one of the widely debated and most discussed topics across the nation.

Where do Massachusetts state senators stand on the issue? This week, Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on several roll calls on the immigration issue in 2013-2014. There were no roll calls on the issue in the 2015-2016 session.

LOWER TUITION RATES FOR ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS (H 57)

Senate 12-25, rejected an amendment that would prohibit illegal immigrants from paying the preferred, lower in-state tuition rates and fees at Massachusetts universities. The amendment would supersede a policy, implemented several years ago by former Gov. Deval Patrick, allowing some students who are not in the country legally to pay the lower tuition rates.

Amendment supporters said the state should not offer financial rewards to anyone who has broken the law and is in this country illegally. They argued it is outrageous to offer low tuition rates to these students while citizens from outside Massachusetts, including war veterans, are required to pay higher rates if they attend a state school.

Amendment opponents said many of these students were babies when they were brought here by their parents and had no choice about entering the country illegally. They noted some hardworking students are currently required to pay out-of-state tuition rates that are up to five times higher than the in-state rate.

(A "Yes" vote is the prohibition. A "No" vote is against it.)

SHOW PROOF OF RESIDENCY TO REGISTER CAR (S 8)

Senate 12-25, rejected an amendment that would require applicants to provide specific proof of legal residence in order to register their cars. The accepted IDs include a driver's license, Massachusetts identification card, social security number or other proof of legal residence issued by the state or the federal government.

Amendment supporters said this would prevent illegal immigrants and people who lose their driver's license in other states for things like drunken driving from illegally registering their cars here. They argued that the Registry of Motor Vehicles has refused to enforce this law which is already on the books and is still allowing people to register their cars by just showing a utility bill.

Amendment opponents said allowing an illegal alien to own a vehicle in Massachusetts does not jeopardize the public's safety. They argued the bill seems aimed at using the Registry of Motor Vehicles to identify and police undocumented people.

(A "Yes" vote is for requiring proof of legal residence. A "No" vote is against it.)

STUDY THE FEDERAL REQUIREMENTS AMENDMENT (S 1885)

Senate 31-7, approved an amendment that would require the state to study and determine the costs and benefits of limiting eligibility for state assisted public housing to individuals who qualify under federal guidelines. The amendment would replace a proposal that would require applicants qualify under federal guidelines. Federal eligibility standards and proof of identity for housing assistance are stricter than state standards and include requiring a social security number.

Supporters of the study said requiring applicants to meet federal guidelines is unconstitutional and would take housing away from immigrants including people who were granted temporary status from countries with oppressive regimes.

Opponents of the study said it is outrageous that currently people can get subsidized housing ahead of verified citizens without producing a social security number. They noted the federal guidelines offer exemptions for some categories.

(A "Yes" vote is for the study. A "No" vote is against it.)

MUST PROVIDE SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER FOR PUBLIC HOUSING (S 8)

Senate 11-27, rejected an amendment prohibiting potential tenants who cannot provide a social security number from being placed in a public housing unit prior to any applicant who can do so.

Amendment supporters said this would ensure that illegal immigrants who are breaking the law are not given priority over citizens and others who abide by the nation's laws. They argued it is outrageous that illegal immigrants should be considered for scarce public housing units while legal residents of the community.

Amendment opponents said the number of illegal immigrants in public housing is minimal. They argued it would be unfair and inhumane to deny housing to these immigrants.

ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS TO HANSCOM (H 4817)

Senate 9-29, rejected an amendment requiring the state to submit a report on the details of and the cost to the state of the transport of illegal immigrants to the Hanscom Air Force Base and Logan Airport by Federal Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE). The amendment was proposed to a bill that would find the state temporarily until the Legislature approves a fiscal 2018 budget.

Amendment supporters said taxpayers have a right to know the details and cost, including whether any detainees were released from federal custody into the state, and whether the state has provided any detainees with state benefits.

Amendment opponents said they weren't necessarily opposed to the idea but noted that the passage of the temporary budget cannot be delayed with consideration of amendments, or the state will run out of operating money.

ALSO UP ON COHASSET HILL

Several laws approved by the House and Senate and signed into law by Gov. Charlie Baker at the end of 2016 go into effect this month including:

ADULT MALNUTRITION COMMISSION (S 2499) - Establishes a 17-member commission on malnutrition prevention among older adults. The commission will investigate and study the effects of malnutrition on older adults and the most effective strategies for reducing it. It will also provide a report to the Legislature by December 31, 2017.

Supporters say that incidents of malnutrition among seniors are increasing in the Bay State. They argue that it is a serious problem that can lead to illness and even death.

"Elder malnutrition is often diagnosed as a secondary condition when an older person is admitted to the hospital for an acute illness and is frequently cited as the primary reason for readmission to a hospital after treatment," said bill sponsor Sen. Jennifer Flanagan (D-Leominster). "This commission seeks to find out how to reach elders out there who may be suffering from food insecurity and malnutrition and I hope that the recommendations will result in better health outcomes for our elder population."

Supporters say that incidents of malnutrition among seniors are increasing in the Bay State. They argue that it is a serious problem that can lead to illness and even death.

"Elder malnutrition is often diagnosed as a secondary condition when an older person is admitted to the hospital for an acute illness and is frequently cited as the primary reason for readmission to a hospital after treatment," said bill sponsor Sen. Jennifer Flanagan (D-Leominster). "This commission seeks to find out how to reach elders out there who may be suffering from food insecurity and malnutrition and I hope that the recommendations will result in better health outcomes for our elder population."

BAN DISCRIMINATION IN ORGAN TRANSPLANTS (H 4332) - Prohibits consideration of a patient's intellectual or physical disability when determining who is eligible for an organ transplant and who should be highest on the waiting list. It allows the disability to be considered only if it is determined to be medically significant in a negative way to the transplant.

Supporters say it is long past time to end this discrimination. "People with disabilities have faced discrimination in other states when seeking potentially lifesaving organ transplants," said sponsor Rep. Jim Cantwell (D-Marshfield). "In fact, a survey conducted by Stantford University of 88 transplant centers found that 85 percent of pediatric transplant centers consider intellectual or developmental disability as a factor in their determinations of transplant eligibility."

DUCK BOAT TOURS (S 2473) - Prohibits a driver of any amphibious sightseeing vehicle, commonly known as Duck Boats, from providing commentary about the tour while driving and requires companies to add a second worker to narrate the tour. It requires the vehicle to be equipped with safety equipment including blind spot cameras and proximity sensors and that the Registrar of Motor Vehicles set new rules for the operation of duck boats by April 1, 2017. Violators will be fined up to $500 for the first offense and $1,000 for any subsequent offenses.

The bill was filed in June 2016 in response to the tragic death in April in which a Duck Boat struck and killed Allison Warmuth. The vehicle ran over Allison's moped near her Beacon Hill residence, killing the graduate of Messiah College, a Christian school in Pennsylvania, who was a senior underwriter for hospitals and medical practices. "It makes Boston safer, but more than that, gives a little bit of positive meaning to the otherwise completely wasteful death of a fine young woman in her prime," said the bill's sponsor Sen. William Brownsberger (D-Belmont).

The popularity of the duck boats can continue while the public safety is better preserved," added Rep. William Straus (D-Mattapoisett).

THE CARE ACT (H 3911) - Require hospitals to allow patients to designate a caregiver who would be given all the patient's health information and a copy of his or her discharge plan. Hospital staff are required to discuss with the patient and caregiver the after-care assistance needs of the patient including medication management, injections and wound care.

Other information that must be provided to the caregiver includes available community resources and long-term care support services near the patient's residence that may be used to support the discharge plan.

Supporters say this will make life a little easier for caregivers and provide better services for the patient. They note that Massachusetts has 844,000 unpaid family caregivers who are helping an aging parent or other loved one to live independently in their own homes. They argue that many of these caregivers have a regular full or part-time job and are overwhelmed by their caregiver duties. They note that in 2015 in Massachusetts, family caregivers provided 786 million hours of unpaid care valued at an estimated $11.6 billion annually.

"Today many family members or family friends are charged with caring for a person when they are released from the hospital without adequate instructions," said the bill's sponsor Rep. Chris Walsh (D-Roxbury). "The CARE Act ensures that caretakers will be provided with appropriate training and education in what they will need to do for the patient upon release."

HOW LONG WAS LAST WEEK'S SESSION? Beacon Hill Roll Call tracks the length of time that the House and Senate were in session each week. Many legislators say that legislative sessions are only one aspect of the Legislature's job and that a lot of important work is done outside of the House and Senate chambers. They note that their jobs also involve meeting regularly or long enough to debate and vote in public view on the thousands of pieces of legislation that have been filed. They note that the infrequency and brief length of sessions are misguided and lead to irresponsible late night sessions and a mad rush to act on dozens of bills in the days immediately preceding the end of an annual session.

During the week of February 27-March 3, the House met for a total of nine minutes and the Senate met for a total of 20 minutes.

HEALTH

Appointments available for Mammography Van

The Scituate Health Department in collaboration with the Cohasset Board of Health is pleased to announce that they will be hosting Dana-Farber's Mammography Van on Thursday, April 13, from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

If you are a woman age 40 and older and would like to schedule an appointment, please contact the Mammography Van office at 617-632-1974. Dana-Farber, with your permission, will obtain your prior mammography films/images, making the process very user friendly.

There is a change in location for this screening day from previous Van days. The Van will be parked at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 465 First Parish Road, Scituate, which is across from Town Hall at the corner of 3A and First Parish Road.

The Van offers both convenience and outstanding service. It possesses a valid license and certificate of inspection issued by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. Screening mammograms will be performed by Dana-Farber mammography technologists and read by board-certified radiologists.

The school budget is in balance, and all principals report they are happy with the outcome. [WICKED LOCAL STAFF PHOTO]

The third call came in not long after. Although the doors remained closed and the music was not audible beyond the lot line, there was a crowd gathered around a photo booth on the patio, and this seemed to be the source of the noise. The issue was resolved upon dismantling the photo booth.

Legal representatives for the Town and Inn examined and cross-examined the witnesses, including police who had responded to the situation and an Inn employee who had coordinated the wedding. Neighbors had already had the opportunity to speak at the first hearing in December. The board reviewed the video evidence previously submitted by neighbors.

Representing the inn, Attorney John Lawler argued that the three events had been distinct from one another and each had been addressed.

Furthermore, the license permits the patio doors to stay open until 9 p.m. Kace Bongarzono, the Inn's wedding coordinator, said that any further restrictions would cripple the business, since the view of the harbor is the inn's main selling point as a wedding venue.

Lawler added that "no amplified music on the patio" doesn't mean that no amplified sound will ever leak out of the function room.

"If you make the wrong decision," Lawler concluded, "Cohasset Harbor Inn will not survive. It will be boarded up."

For Special Town Counsel Jim Lampke, it boiled down to this: there had been four complaints, and the evidence showed noise violations. Something had to be done.

No one on the board doubted that there had been "unreasonable noise" in the area that night. The challenge was determining just how much unreasonable noise, and whether reasonable measures had been taken to address the problems.

"It was one very loud night where nothing was addressed to the point where we could say 'it's settled,'" said Vice Chairman Paul Schubert.

Although the offenses were cumulative, the board was careful to consider the three incidents individually, not allowing their knowledge of events later in the night to tarnish their decision about events earlier in the night.

By a vote of 3-2, the board found that the 7:04 p.m. incident did not constitute a violation because the inn had resolved the issue when asked.

"We have to be a little bit flexible here," said Selectman

TIMELINE

September: On Sept. 25, police responded to three calls regarding music and noise coming from the Cohasset Harbor Inn, as well as a later call regarding a noisy crowd outside the American Legion and at Veterans Park. Neighbors said the music was too loud, especially for a school night, and continued past the time when the Inn doors were supposed to be shut to keep noise inside.

October: Neighbors and police appeared before the selectmen to discuss possible entertainment and liquor license violations. The procedure for handling this was not clear, so the board consulted Special Town Counsel Jim Lampke for guidance and scheduled a hearing for November. Officials decided only to pursue the entertainment violations.

November: Inn owner Gerd Ordelheide requested a continuation so his team could finish preparing materials following a change in legal representation. According to selectmen, one such continuation is permitted.

December: A five-hour hearing was not enough for neighbors, police, Inn employees and legal representatives all to have their say. The hearing was continued to January.

During the hearing, the Inn's lawyer said that his client had cooperated with police on the two occasions they came to the Inn. The venue, however, does not take responsibility for the after party at the Legion Hall or the crowd outside after 11 p.m. Since wedding guests had left the Inn by 10:15 p.m.

January: Legal representatives for the Town and Inn said they were working together to reach an agreement about how to address noise in the future. With that inked, no violation finding would be necessary, although the board considered making minor changes to the inn's entertainment license. The parties agreed to follow up with the board in February.

At this time, managers of the inn and its sister establishment, Atlantica, were asked to provide cell phone numbers where the Town, police, and neighbors could reach them directly in the event of a future disturbance.

February: Legal representatives for the Town and the Inn said they had not been able to reach an agreement and requested a one-week continuation to finalize the terms.

March: Unable to reach an agreement, the Town and Inn agreed to re-open the hearing and heard from several more witnesses before finding two license violations.

Jack Kenley. "This person's running a business. The police asked them to lower the volume, and they did it. They were acting in good faith trying to control the music; I can't see that as a violation."

The board unanimously found that the event occurring around 8 p.m. had been a violation, based on video evidence from neighbors and considering that the police had already been to the venue once that night about noise.

In a vote of 3-2, the board found that the constant turn-over in management leads to operators who don't necessarily know the parameters of their job or permits, as demonstrated by the testimony of employees who had never even been presented with a copy of the permit.

On April 12, the board additionally looks forward to some clarity on operating hours, which have been consistently inconsistent since the change of ownership last summer.

Kenley. "It's clear we're establishing a pattern of behavior. Going into the season, I'm not going to be very patient with any violation of the entertainment license or the liquor license. I'm fed up."

At that time, the board also expects a management update. Managers are being shuffled between the inn, Atlantica, and the Red Lion Inn (all under the same ownership of Gerd Ordelheide), and there is currently a management vacancy.

Selectman Steve Gaumer noted that the constant turn-over in management leads to operators who don't necessarily know the parameters of their job or permits, as demonstrated by the testimony of employees who had never even been presented with a copy of the permit.

Space will also be dedicated to honoring the history of the church and the Beechwood community.

Beechwood resident Chrissy Harris first envisioned a church in the neighborhood in 1862. The nearest house of worship was three miles away — a prohibitive distance at that time. Harris began to pray and fast for a church to be planted. At the same time, she started setting aside some of her earnings.

Prior to the building's construction, early members of the congregation gathered in a function hall under the pastoral leadership of Rev. Cyrus Stone.

Harris saved up for five years. Though others told her the time was not ripe for planting a house of worship in the area, she insisted that her savings ($32.42, all in change) be used to establish a meetinghouse. Rev. Stone began to look for other sources of funding.

The classic white-steeped church was built in October of 1866, and hundreds gathered for the dedication of the cornerstone. Rev. James H. Means of Dorchester gave the sermon that day, and a time capsule was placed beneath the cornerstone for future generations to unearth.

The bells rang out for the first time on January 15, 1867, and the pews (purchased secondhand from a Bridgewater church with funds appropriated by the Ladies Sewing Circle) were insufficient to hold the crowd that responded.

The Historical Society aims to raise $400,000 to purchase the church.

standards, but that the new requirements can be met by repurposing materials the school already has.

There were no major deferred items at Deer Hill last year. DeChiara had asked for alternative furniture for classrooms, but since this was provided thanks to a generous gift by the Cohasset Education Foundation, there were no major budgetary requests coming from the upper elementary school.

Meanwhile, at Joseph Osgood School, the number of faculty members is also projected to hold steady, but there may be some exciting new changes to curriculum approach. Principal Lisa Farrell spoke of rotating themes for kindergarten classrooms — chunks of time dedicated to a topic like recycling or building habitats. Farrell said she had seen this approach working well in another district.

"It looks like play, but it's purposeful," Farrell said of the approach. "They're designing their curriculum for the day."

Farrell also plans to place more emphasis on oral communication for kindergarten through second-graders to better enable them to share their thoughts and feelings. This won't require additional funding — just more of that equally precious commodity, time.

The middle-high school has filled a dual-certified special education and social studies teacher position and looks ahead to adding more licensed teachers, with the goal of reducing ESPs (education support professionals) and reducing time spent outside of the classroom for special ed students.

Principal Carolyn Connolly reported that the school would be able to provide the needed faculty given the resources available. She said the administration has also been working with current faculty to promote "universal design for learning," an approach that helps students learn the same information even if they need to process it differently.

Connolly said that digital learning is one of the best methods they have for reaching different kinds of learners, and the first year of the "bring-your-own device" rollout has been a success so far. Another key factor is giving teachers the freedom to take risks and be creative in their classrooms.

"From my time teaching, I learned that the more that I let go of it and the more I let students control their own learning, the more I reaped," said Connolly. "Teachers won't be judged for trying something new. No one will say, 'You did what in your classroom?' We're shifting from the tried-and-true."

The School Committee will present the budget to the Board of Selectmen next Tuesday, March 14.

CAR CARE CORNER

Remote starters: Great gift for someone special

Remote Starters - a must-have or simply a nice feature? The perfect gift?

A remote car starter is essentially a module installed in a vehicle that has access to the ignition, power, starter, brake, and tachometer wires. The installation of a remote starter typically includes a key fob — which transmits a radio signal to the module. The module takes over the function of the key, telling the ignition to turn on the car — even if the driver isn't in it.

Because of the cold and hot temperatures in New England, the topic of Remote Starters comes up a lot this time of year. What are the pros and cons, and are they really necessary?

Comfort: Who wouldn't like to enter into a warm, toasty car in the winter? The biggest "pro" of a Remote Starter is comfort — either a warm car waiting for you on cold days, or via air conditioning — a cool car waiting on the hot days.

Car Health: It isn't healthy for an engine to start up and immediately begin driving in the winter — when the engine is already fighting the elements. It's better for the engine to warm up for at least 10 minutes, experts say, to keep your engine running optimally.

Locked Out: On the coldest days, often the car doors and locks (and windows, and windshield wipers) freeze up, which can be a real nuisance when you're late for work. By using a remote starter from the comfort of your home, the car slowly warms before you get in the vehicle. NOTE: The warmth also begins to melt some of the snow and frost that has accumulated in the night, lessening the need for scraping the windshield!

Pet Safety: On extremely cold (or hot) days, even the best dog owners may need to run into a store for a few moments but are concerned about the temperature of the car. A remote starter allows you to safely turn on the car's heat or air conditioning system for a few minutes to keep Fido happy — but you still have the keys and the vehicle remains locked (so there is no concern for your dog's safety).

Quality Issues: Remote starters are improving with each new generation. Factory installed remote car starters are fully integrated into the cars electrical system — and companies like GM include the systems in their warranties. Aftermarket remote starters have gotten a bad reputation in the past, because they are only as good as the experience of the installer. Always go to a dealer with highly experienced installers, and ask about added features that are now available like smart phone apps — which add even more modern convenience.

Remote starters have a lot of pros, and when they are installed by a professional they have very few cons. Keeping your loved ones safe, and toasty warm in their vehicles this winter may be a great gift!

OUR VIEW

Three things to consider

1 LOGO CONTEST: The Cohasset 250th Celebration Committee — one of our town's newest committees — is already hard at work planning for 2020 when our town has a major birthday.

The committee has a cool idea to have a logo that they plan to start using right away. To that end they are asking aspiring student artists to submit designs. Their student logo design contest officially launches today, Friday, March 10 (See related story, page A11).

The logo will appear on the official 250th celebration website, Cohasset250th.com, which goes live today. It will also be on emblems, signs, banners, t-shirts and other sestercentennial swag, to be determined.

The contest guidelines say that the logo should "clearly reflect the unique character of our beautiful town and our incredible close-knit community."

The design contest is open to students in grades three to 12. The artist must live in Cohasset but does not have to attend Cohasset schools. The only rules are that the logo must include the word "Cohasset" and the number "250," and it must be submitted by April 12. Submission forms can be found at Cohasset250th.com.

GROWING ON THE FARM

People, plants come out when it's warmer

Who wouldn't blame a spring shoot pushing through the muddy soil to emerge triumphant in the late winter sun? Especially given the fact that it was record setting temperatures, so many green tips and sprigs have appeared.

For that matter, people too come out when it is warmer. People walk, animals think about shedding their winter coats and as is the case for people feeling under attack, many folks take to the streets to demand their rights and voice their opinions for equality and justice.

The last two demands, equality and justice, could easily be considered a stretch of the imagination when comparing and writing about green shoots in late winter. Times of tweets, executive orders and bold statements merit a response. The fact that winter may be over on a 68-degree day in late February also merits a remark. But then comes the bitter chill, the reality of winter still rearing its cold head. Along with the cold comes an urgency to cover the garlic in the field with more protective leaves.

The farmer hurries to the wood pile to collect more split logs for the home fires and the greenhouse wood stove fires, as the temperatures hover at 18 degrees or below, with howling winds for extra affect. We will move into spring with fits and starts. The ebb and flow of temperatures will keep us honest and patient as we calculate and wait.

We are waiting for the right time, by some almanac or the new moon or when the seed catalog says it is ok to place a seed and some hope into the warm potting soil. Onions (many alliums for that matter), delphinium, savory, thyme and mint are just a few of the seeds that need the warmth and darkness of a germination chamber and then the growing length of daylight to grow in their row trays and wooden flats. Side by side, the many seeds will grow and eventually demand more space and the outdoor elements to form their bulbs, scents, flowers and flavors.

Under a watchful eye of the growers, the wood stove stokers and other passers by, the greenhouse will come alive with color-mostly green for it is a Dickensian hoop house. The farmers welcome them all. And the sprouts in the outdoors, having been underground since autumn, will decide whether to keep rising.

Will people keep marching? Will attacks keep being spewed? Will people still seek new lands, risking treacherous crossings and borders? I know the farmers at Holly Hill will keep watering, observing, tending and warming to the idea of fields, lands and greenhouses where all can grow and thrive. Spring forth, March on.

Student logo contest for Cohasset celebration

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

Calling all aspiring artists! The Cohasset 250th Celebration Committee needs a logo, and they want you to create it. Their student logo design contest officially launches today, Friday, March 10.

The committee is planning the town's 250th birthday party (a.k.a. its sestercentennial). The logo will help tie together events throughout the year of 2020. But the contest winner won't have to wait another three years to see their winning work — the committee wants to start using it right away!

The logo will appear on the official 250th celebration website, Cohasset250th.com, which goes live today. It will also be on emblems, signs, banners, t-shirts and other sestercentennial swag, to be determined.

A good logo is seven things: simple, distinct, scalable, memorable, versatile, relevant, and timeless. Parsed out, that means it should be easy to identify and recognize. It should work equally well on a tiny keychain and a large banner. It may hearken to other Cohasset logos (i.e., by borrowing a color scheme), but it should be its own unique image. And while it should be appropriate to the times, it shouldn't be limited to current trends. The contest guidelines say that the logo should "clearly reflect the unique character of our beautiful town and our incredible close-knit community."

A panel of five local celebrities will choose the winner sometime in May at a dedicated event, where some of the top runners-up will be on display. The panel includes: ■ David Hassan, the artist behind signs at the schools, Atlantic Bagel, and many more iconic spots in town.

■ Austin Lyne, the owner of Good Sport, who has built his business on creating specialty merchandise and developing logos and brands with local organizations.

■ Ron Goodwin, the owner of Goodwin Graphics and a prime example of how an artist can turn his work into a business venture.

■ Margot Cheel, an award-winning aerial photographer (who flies her own plane).

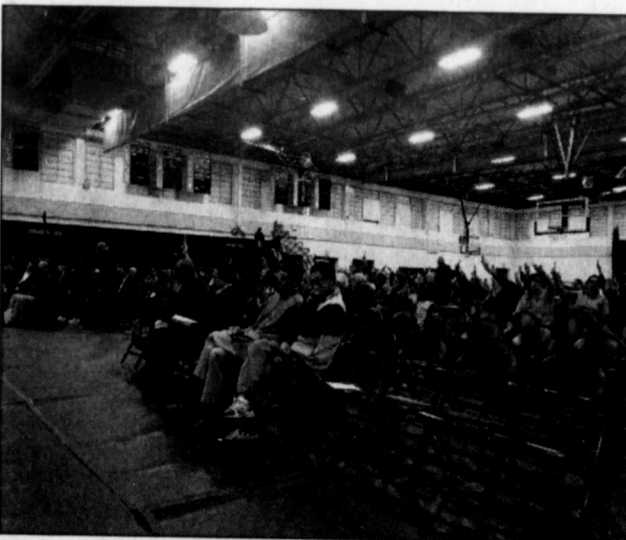

■ Diane Kennedy, former coordinator of the Arts Festival on the Common and perpetual advocate for the arts in Cohasset and beyond.

The design contest is open to students in grades three to 12. The artist must live in Cohasset but does not have to attend Cohasset schools. The only rules are that the logo must include the word "Cohasset" and the number "250," and it must be submitted by April 12.

That's only a month away, so artists, get busy, and may the odds be ever in your favor. Submission forms can be found at Cohasset250th.com.

TOWN MEETING

This year's warrant is going to be substantial and could attract a crowd at the annual Town Meeting. (WICKED LOCAL PHOTO)

Beefy warrant is shaping up

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

Selectmen will dedicate most of March to finalizing the Warrant for Annual Town Meeting, scheduled for Monday, May 1. At 32 articles, the Warrant is a little farther than usual. The board voted last week, Feb. 28, on which articles to include.

As always, the Warrant opens with housekeeping items — Town and committee reports, budgets and stabilization funds, unpaid bills from previous years, and supplemental appropriations to cover unexpected costs from the past fiscal year. So far these early articles are just placeholders, with details to be added as they're available.

One article introduces a new process for departmental revolving funds, another for the special education stabilization fund. Katie Dugan for the School Committee said the new process would enable the schools to tap into their savings to cover unexpected special costs during the year, rather than waiting for Town Meeting to approve the transfer.

It is proposed that the Town be able to deny certain licenses and permits (such as beach stickers or building permits) to applicants who have not been paying their taxes or fees.

Officials said the issue rarely comes up, but the penalty would provide incentive for residents who have been delinquent on their payments for more than a year. It would not affect those who forgot or paid late on a single occasion, and it would not come into play before the resident had been notified multiple times of their delinquency.

There is an article to place a temporary moratorium on commercial marijuana establishments setting up shop in town. While the Town cannot change the ruling of the State, it buys Cohasset another year to work out its regulations as Massachusetts does the same.

Another article proposes separating the positions of finance director and town accountant to allow the Town more flexibility regarding who handles which responsibilities.

The Water Department has filed an article to loop the water system in the Ledgewood Farm Drive area. The selectmen's private way policy will also be included, along with an article to appropriate Community Preservation Act funds to various projects approved by the Community Preservation Committee.

The Warrant closes with several citizens' petitions, including a proposal for a scenic road bylaw, amendments to the zoning by-law, changes to the large home review process, and a request to expand the wastewater sewer system in central Cohasset.

Selectmen will take a closer look at the Warrant at their meeting on Tuesday, March 14. Look for more on this issue in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

UPDATE

Private ways are public concern

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

Cedar Acres Lane isn't getting repaved in time for summer — at least, not the Town's dime. The Board of Selectmen has been moving toward a mechanism for helping private ways in dire straits, and it's sure to help many in town, but it might be too little too late for Cedar Acres.

"We've been advocating for this for a year and a half," said resident Christine Murphy, who has been the voice of the neighborhood. "We have young people with young children; we thought we could get this done for this summer, in June. It's disheartening to be looking to next fall."

The private ways policy has been placed on the Annual Town Meeting Warrant, so the neighborhood won't have a sure answer about whether it can help them until the meeting on May 1. Murphy said at this point the neighbors can might just tackle the expensive project without the Town's help.

Fortunately, there might be better news on the horizon for other crumbling private ways. The policy has three facets that will help move eligible private ways through the replacement process, and even (in some cases) to acceptance as a public way.

First, there will need to be an amendment to the Town bylaws. Town Manager Chris Senior said he had been working on this with Town Counsel and would present the amendment to the Board of Selectmen at their next meeting on Tuesday, March 14.

Second, the policy will propose a funding mechanism, possibly a revolving account. Such an account would enable the Town to develop a multi-year solution for the many private ways in need without taking resources away from public ways.

Finally, in tandem with the policy, the Town will work to map and categorize roads according to their age and condition. This will help determine which roads need the most help and whether they're eligible to receive Town funds.

Calling all Korean War veterans

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

If you or someone you know served in the Korean War, South Korea would like to say "thank you." The South Korean government is presenting the Ambassador of Peace medal to veterans who served between June 25, 1950 and July 27, 1953.

The Veteran Services Office would like to round up at least 10 local Korean War veterans from Cohasset and surrounding communities (they can coordinate with Offices in other towns) so that the Boston Korea Consulate General will come to present the medals.

The Korean War began in 1950, when the Russian-backed, northern Democratic People's Republic of Korea invaded the Western-sympathizing, southern Republic of Korea. It was the first military action of the Cold War.

America saw its involvement as a stand against international communism.

But by then, those who had served in World War II had returned home and started families. People didn't want to know about the conflict in Korea. And many still know very little about it, lending it the nickname "the Forgotten War."

The time for being forgotten is past. Five million soldiers and civilians lost their lives in the Korean War. 40,000 of those were Americans, and 100,000 more came home wounded. Others bear the invisible scars that afflict so many who serve in war. Those sacrifices do not go unnoticed or un-thanked.

The Ambassador for Peace medal has been presented to Korean War veterans for several years, but this is the first time Cohasset has rounded up its veterans to receive it. Family members of veterans who are deceased may receive the medal in their stead.

Contact the Veteran Affairs Office, Vincent Fontaine, by phone at 781-635-4407 or by email at VFountain@cohassetma.org. Philip Auglis may also assist you at 781-985-2577 or philipauglis@gmail.com.

Or simply stop by the Veterans Services Office at Willcutt Commons during the Senior Café between 9 and 11 a.m. some Monday morning, and treat yourself to breakfast while you're there!

Overmatched

Skippers can't match Cathedral's speed in Sectional Semifinal loss

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

There are times when the Cohasset boys basketball team might have felt like that they were playing five-against-nine in its Div. 4 South Sectional semifinal game with Cathedral.

The Panthers were constantly deflecting the ball, creating steals and grabbing offensive rebounds in clusters throughout the entire 32 minutes of the game.

Cohasset did all they could do to hang in against the lightning quick Cathedral, but the Panthers had too much speed and athleticism. Cathedral rolled to a 90-55 win over Cohasset.

"Their speed is something that you cannot practice against," Cohasset assistant coach John Maher said. "They are the No. 2 team (in Eastern Mass) for a reason. We trained our guys the best that we could. They played hard and it was not a lack of effort. There are times when you get overmatched. We rely on our defense to get our offense going," Cathedral coach Larry Merritt said. "We play the way that we practice and we do a lot of running and we do a lot of game type situations."

"When we get the opportunity we get out and run and if there is nothing there we run a set."

The Panthers scored 28 points off of Cohasset turnovers and 14 more points on offensive rebounds.

"Cathedral keeps coming at you" Maher said. "If they move the ball and dribble the ball, they keep coming at you. You can take five dribbles or two dribbles they keep coming. You can't practice for what they do. Hopefully, the kids take what happen from this game and learn from it. We

No. 8 Cohasset/Hanover finished its season with a 14-4-4

In the game, goalie Sarissa Fazio was brilliant, making a number of saves to keep her team in the game before finally surrendering a goal to Walpole's Katie Martin less than a minute into the 3-on-3 overtime period.

"This was tough," Cohasset/Hanover coach Deb Beal said.

their opponents 29-9 in the period.

Foot on the gas

Skippers roll by Bristol-Plymouth and South Shore Christian

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The Cohasset boys basketball season started its MIAA Tournament in style with an 84-62 win over Bristol-Plymouth Thursday night at Cohasset.

Bristol-Plymouth came into the game with a No. 14 seed, while the Skippers are No. 3.

The Skippers led 27-14 after one quarter and took a 45-22 lead into the half. After three, Cohasset led 68-36.

"It's good to start the tournament with a win like that," assistant coach John Maher, a former Skipper star, said. "We shot well, moved the ball well. Defensively I thought we were good. We made them work for shots and our press just wore them down. They handled the press in the first quarter, but the idea of our press is to wear them down. I thought we did a good job with that."

While Cohasset had a big lead pretty early, there was a reason they never let up. We always want to have them keep their foot on the gas," Maher said. "We were up 20 against Archies (Archbishop Williams) and we almost lost that game. In the tournament everyone is a good team. You can be up 20 or 30, but the second you let up they can come back."

Maher said the unheralded star of the game was senior guard Liam O'Connell.

"I thought Liam O'Connell shot the ball real well," Maher said. "We rely on him to do a lot of things on defense, get the ball going, control the pace of the game. Although we want him to shoot it, shooting isn't really his thing. Tonight he was knocking down shots."

Maher liked what a number of players did in the game.

hopefully come back and are ready to go, but this one hurts."

The Skippers got off to the start that they could have hoped for.

Liam O'Connell was holding his own against the pressure and getting the ball inside to Chase Bomeisler inside or Thatcher Stone for an open look at a 3-pointer.

Cohasset jumped out to a 13-8 lead after a Bomeisler layup with 4:03 left in the first period. Bomeisler and O'Connell both finished the game with 19 points apiece.

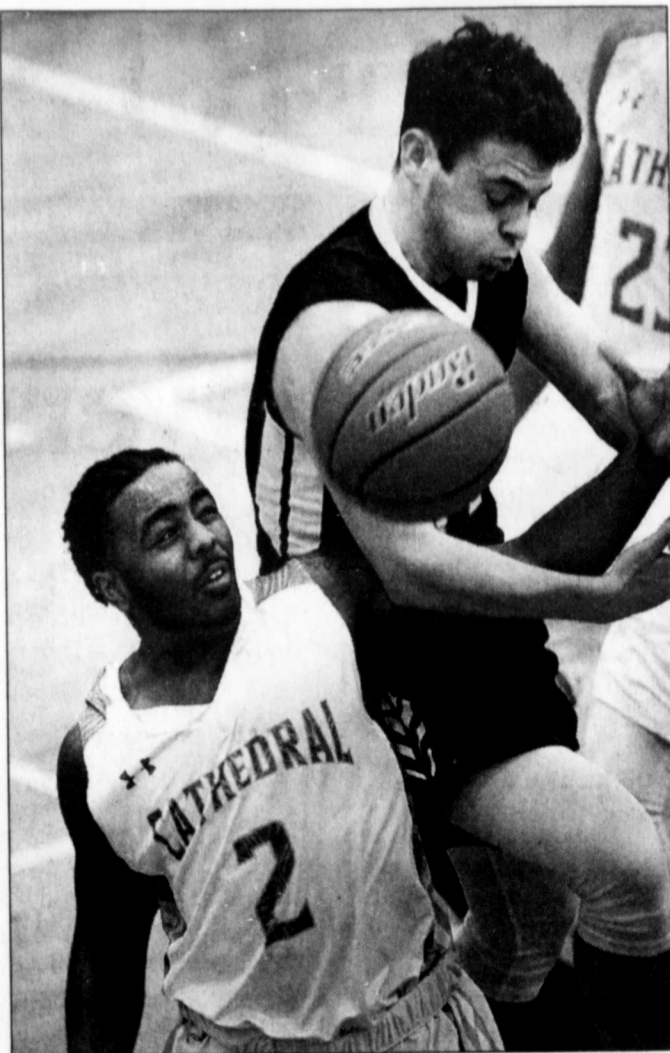

Stone provided the outside shooting for Cohasset as he ended up with 10 points.

O'Connell is the only senior on the roster for the Skippers and he will be missed.

"We may have a young team," Maher said. "We will still miss Liam. He played his heart out. He gives us everything that he has."

Despite the good start, Cathedral shifted it into another gear in the remaining minutes of the first period.

Emmanuel Green on the inside and the outside shooting of Trevor Lynch erupted for 21-2 run to finish the first period and give the Panthers a 29-15 lead. Lynch scored the first eight points of the run for Cathedral with pair of 3-pointers and a layup.

Cathedral, which came off a red hot shooting game against Nantucket, where they scored 126 points in a 126-65 win over Nantucket in the quarterfinals did not slow down.

They added to the lead as the game went on with their balance at both ends of the court. They led 54-28 half-time and 71-38 after three periods.

SEASON

"I feel bad for the seniors. They gave everything they had. They're a great bunch of kids."

Beal was proud of what her team accomplished, win or lose.

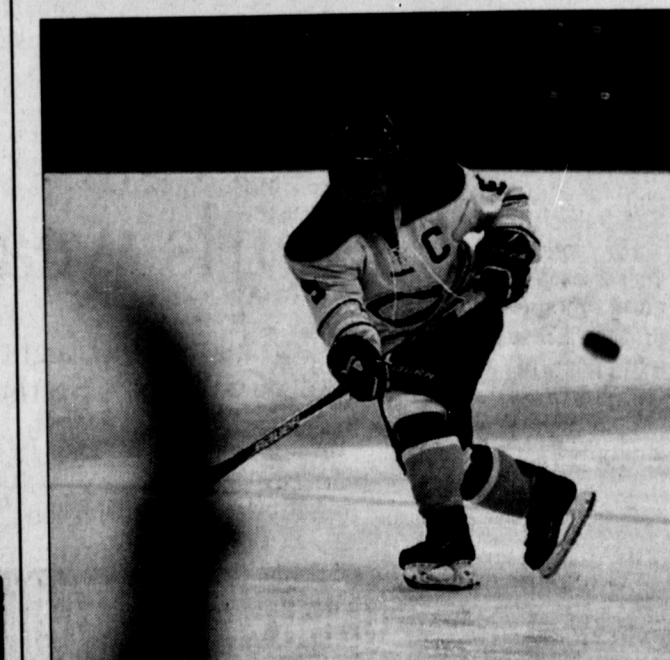

"It's really tough to end the season with a loss," she said. "It happens so abruptly. When you realize how long the journey was to get there you see that one game's result is not at all what the season was. We began three months ago and we grew and we developed and we had a blast. The journey with these girls was amazing. Some will venture off into "the real world" and another's have the taste of what we can do and have the opportunity to return next season."

Graduating players include a number of the team's stars, including Alex Martini (19 pts), Callie Hoadley (22 pts), Kaitlin McGovern (19 pts), Cassidy Bodie, Ellie Jackisch, Lizzy Suzedell, Kailey Murphy, Katie Talacci (23 pts) and Sara Barry.

Good news for the team is a plethora of young players return including Fazio, who is a freshman, Lindsey Beiche (10 pts), sophomore Morgan Foley (20 pts), junior Alyssa Wilcox (12 pts), sophomore Jacqui Manning (10 pts) and freshman Lauren Farren (10 pts). There are also a number of players who didn't have big point totals, but were outstanding defensively.

Another big honor came to the team when Beal was honored by the National Ice Hockey Officials Association Mass. South Shore Chapter as their Coach of the Year.

Sharks win streak ends at 12 games

South Coastal Hockey League roundup through May 5

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

The South Coastal Men's Hockey League had an interesting set of games this past weekend.

The Sharks had their 12 game winning streak come to an end at the hands of the Crusaders, while both the Toros John Tympanick and the Stingers John Dunn had big offensive games in their team's wins.

Scituat's Pat Byrne broke a 2-2 tie with a goal with 6:55 left to give the Crusaders a 3-2 win over the Sharks to end their 12 game winning-streak.

Marshfield's Jim Donovan and Mike Simon scored a goal each to give the Crusaders a 2-1 lead in the third period. Chris Harrington also of Marshfield had two assists in the game for the Crusaders.

Daron Jacobs of Pembroke tied the game with a rebound goal in the third period for the Sharks. The other goal for the Sharks was scored by Mike Crisp.

Tympanick scored four goals and set up two others in the Toros, 7-4 win over the Saints. Joe Craig of Marshfield, Norwell's Peter Cleary and Michael Cashin also of Norwell added a goal each for the Toros.

Steve Collela assisted on three goals and Paul Brinkman had two assists in the win.

The Saints were led by Jim Ford and Scituat's Kevin Gee, who both had a goal and an assist each.

Charles Ryan and Jim McNeill added a goal each.

Dunn scored three goals and set up another while Jim Callahan had a goal and three assists in the Stingers 4-2 win over the Whalers.

Harry Mathews and Jim Toner scored a goal apiece and John Guideron had two assists for the Whalers.

lead, at 58-34, and had everything going their way.

A pair of free throws in the first minute of the fourth quarter extended that margin to 26 points, but then a combination of the Wildcats' press, Cohasset errors, and stone-cold Skipper shooting saw Westport run off 19 straight points. During that skein Cohasset was 0-for-6 from the floor when they managed to get a shot off, and had committed eight turnovers.

But finally the second-seeded Wildcats ran out of steam, and even though Cohasset never did hit a fourth-quarter field goal, netting six of 11 free throws enabled the Skippers to make their reservation in the South final with an eventual 64-55 victory.

Cohasset (18-7) will play No. 4 Cathedral (16-4) in Friday's title game at 5:30 p.m. at Brockton High School.

Junior forward/captain Lauren Cuning was immense for the Skippers, scoring 30 points, including five 3-pointers, while co-captain Mary-Catherine Crumley owned the backboards with 15 rebounds and nine points.

Westport (21-2) was led by eighth-grader Laura Mendell with 16 points, senior Hailey Charest with 14, and seventh-grade point-guard Laila Silver with 12.

Cohasset's size and depth was decisive, allowing the Skippers to out-rebound the Wildcats 37-25, as freshman Molly Greer grabbed eight boards, and classmate Isabella Farren added seven while blocking a couple of shots.

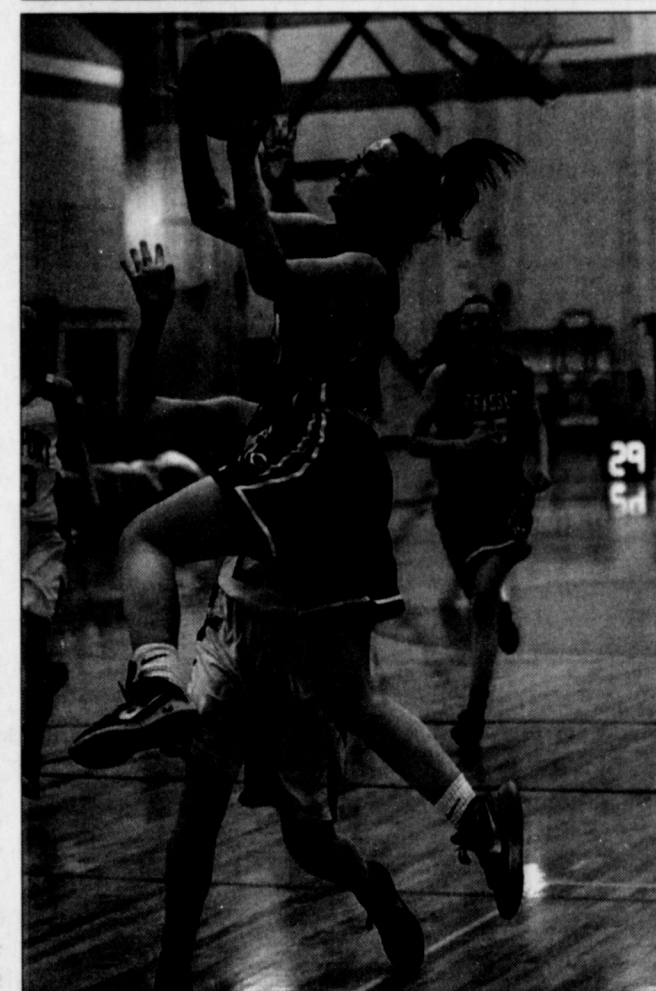

"This is a good win, for sure," said Cohasset coach John LeVangie, who had gray hair before the fourth quarter - honestly. "Westport shot lights-out in that stretch, but we knew they came in here 21-1, and knew what we were in for. We had made some adjustments, and the girls really turned it up a notch in that third quarter, with some energy I didn't think they had."

"Lauren Cuning has been steady all year long, and she was a team leader again tonight. We made some mistakes in that fourth quarter - the kind young kids like these make - but I am very proud of the effort and to get to the sectional final is a great achievement for them."

"When you look at the scoreboard, our comeback was too little, too late,"

Westport coach Michael Ponte said. "But I am very proud of the way they played and what has been a fun season."

"We are so young, when you consider, a lot of the time we had three middle-school kids out there, and at times they did struggle with the pace of the game. But it was a great effort, and when you realize Laila Silver is just 12 years old, and Laura Mendell is 13, we have a bright future."

So do the Skippers.

"That fourth quarter was not a surprise; we knew how good Westport is," said LeVangie. "At the end we had to find our composure and deal with their press, and I think that will help us down the line. Our rebounding was a big factor all night, our defense was strong, and overall I thought we played very hard all night. We're young, but we're learning every time out."

CONSERVATORY NOTES

Books + Music + Fun
= Performathon 2017

By Beth MacLeod Largent

Here at South Shore Conservatory we are diligently working on our annual Performathon: 27 hours of incredible performances, spread out over four days, guaranteed to make you smile from start to finish! As Director of Performathon, I absolutely love seeing all levels of performers, from tiny Suzuki violin players, through adult chamber musicians.

However, when I think about Performathon 2017, it's not just the performing that makes me happy. It's the raising money for scholarships for deserving students, a noble venture and part of our daily work at SSC that makes me happy. But additionally, there's something even MORE that touches close to my heart.

Growing up, the Duxbury Free Library was one of my favorite places to visit. Every week my mother would take me and my brothers to borrow as many library books as we could hold. We carried those books everywhere: to the beach, to our grandparents, in the car and home. Reading and books continue to be an important component of my personal life.

Being in the middle of a big, beautiful book store is a large part of why I adore Performathon. SSC's annual performance marathon so very much! We bring our students to Barnes & Noble at the Derby Street Shoppes in Hingham, and for four days, my love of music and my love of books are combined.

Our students, beginners through adults, raise pledges to help with scholarship—something so important for access at SSC. It's thrilling to see the excitement on our younger students' faces as they hand in their pledge envelopes, knowing they are helping others. At Performathon, they are able to put all their hard work to use.

In between checking in students and listening to heartwarming performances, I allow myself the luxury of wandering the down aisles in the store. I hold the books, I smell them, I feel the lovely fabrics and paper—it's sublime. Also, I BUY!! I feel good doing this because a portion of my purchase comes back to SSC for scholarship support, so its guilt free. I've purchased holiday gifts, birthday gifts, Mother's Day, Father's Day gifts. And, of course, gifts for me.

In between checking in students and listening to heartwarming performances, I allow myself the luxury of wandering the down aisles in the store

In true non-profit spirit, my 13-year-old son also volunteers his time checking in performers...and he's a VERY good shopper! Every day of Performathon we leave Barnes & Noble with something new, and every day I come home feeling energized and happy.

I invite you to join us for Performathon Thursday, March 30 from 5 to 9 p.m., Friday, March 31 from 4 to 9 p.m., Saturday, April 1 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday, April 2 from 12 to 5 p.m. at Barnes & Noble, 96 Derby St. in Hingham!

Come visit, have a cup of coffee and listen to some inspiring music. I promise you that your heart will sing right along with the music. And who knows? You might just find a treasure you just have to bring home. Mention South Shore Conservatory at checkout and a percentage of your sale comes to SSC. There's nothing like the feel of a book combined with sweet music, and knowing you're raising money for deserving students. I can't think of anything better. I hope to see you there!

ALZHEIMER'S JOURNEY

Budgeting for Senior Care

I've got some good news and bad news. The good: people are living longer, healthier lives. According to recent studies, a 65-year-old in great health has a 50 percent chance of living to 85, and 62 percent of women in great health will make it to that same benchmark. The bad news? Surveys show that Americans are not thinking realistically about their futures: they're only thinking about the next few years, underestimating both how many years they will spend in retirement, and how much help they'll need in their twilight years. The result: people are outliving their resources.

The Department of Health and Human Services currently estimates that close to 70 percent of Americans over age 65 will need long-term care during their lifetime. Long-term care services come in many forms, ranging from assisted living residences to skilled nursing care to home care services; and each of these carries a different set of costs. AARP's Long-Term Care Calculator estimates the 2017 cost of a year-long stay at a Massachusetts nursing home is between $128,845 and $139,580, depending on whether the room is semi-private or private, and $63,000 for one year at a Massachusetts assisted living community.

A poll of baby boomers by Nationwide Financial found that those approaching retirement underestimated the actual yearly cost of long-term care by more than three times, leaving many with insufficient funds and financial plans to afford long-term care down the road.

So now that you know the importance of realistically planning for your future and finances, how do you put strategies in place to ensure you have the funds you need and can make them last as long as you need them to?

1. Make an inventory of assets: Start now with making a comprehensive list of all the funds available to you. You'll likely start with your monthly income, but don't stop there. Consider social security benefits, savings, life insurance and annuities. Also do your research on what government benefits may be available to you, such as veterans' benefits.

2. Downsize and rent: Many retirees turn to their home as a source of funds. But rather than selling your home when you downsize, you may want to consider renting your home to tenants. Once you sell a house, it becomes a limited source of funds. If you rent, you'll have a steady income that won't run out.

3. Do your research on senior care options: Avoid having to make a decision about long-term care in a crisis — you may wind up settling for an option that is out of your price-range, or one that will not provide services you may need in the long run. Research long-term care options in your region now to get the scope of amenities and pricing available. Schedule visits and tours of potential communities to see if they might be a good fit, and put yourself down on a waiting list at a community that appeals to you.

As you research the cost of communities, be sure to ask about costs associated with higher levels of care. It's likely that prices will go up if your health needs change. So you might be budgeting for $3,000 a month, but end up paying $10,000 when you require more help and care. During your research, I encourage you to use AARP's Caregiving Checklist to get all the information you need to make an informed decision about an assisted living community.

4. Ask about Medicare: As you research senior living and care communities, ask about their policy regarding Medicare before you make any decision. Some assisted living communities accept Medicare patients, but many don't. Do your research on Medicare to find out what hospital and medical needs the program will pay for.

These are initial steps you can take to put plans in place for a longer, happier life that is free from financial hardship. But this list is not exhaustive, and to best prepare yourself for what the future may bring, I encourage you to consult with a financial and estate planner who can help you implement a plan that best fits your financial and potential long-term care needs.

Bridges by EPOCH at Hingham will host Patricia C. D'Agostino, an attorney at Margolis & Bloom, LLP who specializes in estate and long-term care planning, during our Ask the Expert Panel on Tuesday, March 21 at 12 p.m. Call us at 781-749-7114 to learn more or to RSVP for the presentation.

Health of watershed
topic of forum

The Center for Student Coastal Research will hold a State of the Watershed Forum from 6 to 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 6, at the Cohasset Lightkeepers House, 15 Lighthouse Lane.

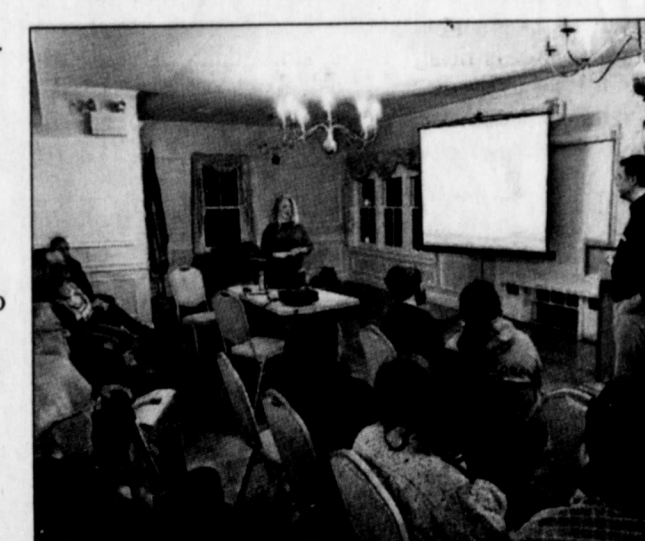

This is an opportunity to engage with stakeholders, voice concerns, learn about public issues of importance to harbor water quality, and set research priorities about ecosystem health in the watershed — from the upper reaches of the freshwater resources to the open waters of Massachusetts Bay.

Cohasset's Center for Student Coastal Research (CSCR) hosts this community gathering to showcase student presentations on local ecosystem study projects as well as educational presentations (with Q&A) by a panel of community leaders and stakeholders involved in the local watershed.

CSCR's mission is to inspire people of all ages to explore and engage in the scientific study of the local watershed and marine environment, launching the next generation of environmental stewards. No cost to attend. For more information, contact Jack Buckley at jbuckley@ccscr.org or visit www.ccscr.org.

GIMME SHELTER

Molly is full of purr-fect potential

By Jamie Baranow

This week we have Molly stepping into her well deserved moment in the spotlight. Molly is a 4-year-old tuxedo cat who is spayed, up to date on shots, and ready to go to her new home.

She hasn't had the easiest life and she was found as a city girl roaming the streets before she found safety at the shelter. Because of her time on the streets she has had to be tough and is now a bit frightened and shy in a shelter setting.

Unfortunately, because of this she sometimes gets overlooked and potential adopters aren't able to see her personality and potential. She is a special cat and we know that she has a lot of love to give; she will just do it in her own way. She is most likely not going to be a traditional "lap cat" but she will be the perfect companion for someone who just wants to have a buddy to be there with them in their home.

She loves to look out the windows and watch the birds and then play with her toy mice and use her scratching post. She is very clean and well behaved and loves to find a soft couch or chair to curl up on and she may even adopt the foot of your bed sometimes.

Molly definitely needs to be an only cat and she is looking for a quiet and calm home where she can feel safe and comfortable. With a little TLC and patience Molly will settle into her new found role as queen of the house in no time. Just like with people, there are so many different types of cats all with their own unique personality.

She knows there is a forever family for her and she believes that there is a perfect match out there for every shelter cat and she can't wait to find hers. Do you think she sounds like the right match for you?

You can learn more about Molly and the other cats and kittens that we have available for adoption by visiting us online at www.hsar.org, or by visiting us at 487 Nantasket Ave. in Hull. Open hours are Monday nights, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., and Saturdays, 2 to 3 p.m. If these times are not convenient for you, special appointments can be made by calling our adoption coordinator at 781-534-4902.

Sudoku

Level: Challenging

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

HOROSCOPE

Salome's Stars

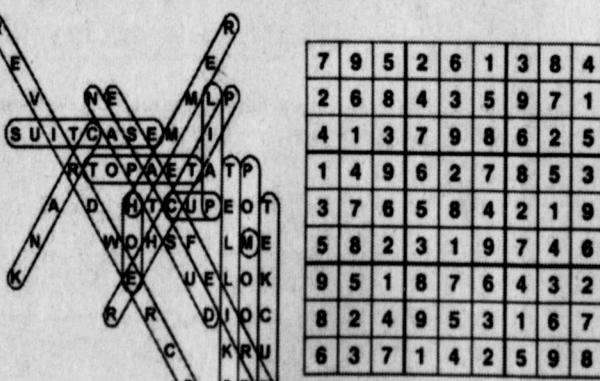

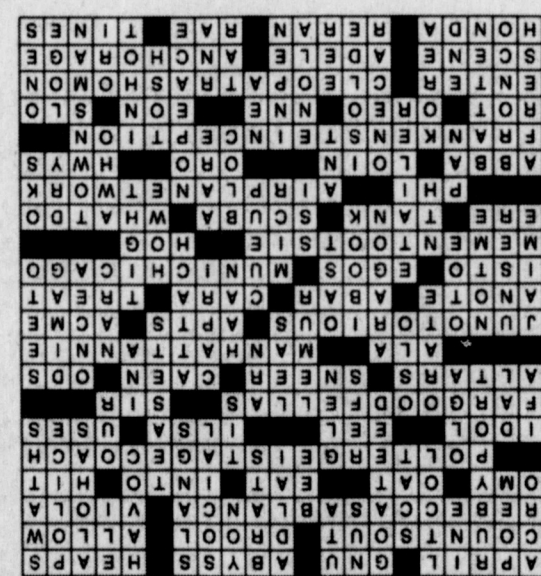

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Keep an open mind about a suggestion you see as unworkable. Give it a chance to prove itself one way or another. The results could surprise both supporters and detractors.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) News about an upcoming venture causes you to make some last-minute adjustments in your plans. But the extra work will pay off, as you come to learn more about the potential benefits opening up.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A more positive aspect grows out of your determination to reach your immediate goals. Continue to keep your focus sharp and on target by steering clear of petty quarrels and other pesky problems.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) By acting as a voice of reason, you can avoid adding to an already turbulent situation. You might have to shout over the tumult, but your words ultimately will be heard and heeded.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) The possibility of a new acquisition always makes those Leonine eyes light up. But be careful that what you see is what you want. Appearances often can be deceiving.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) No matter how much you might feel that you're in the right, resist saying anything that could reignite a still-unresolved situation. Let the matter drop, and move on.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Help with a personal problem comes from an unexpected source. You also find workplace pressures easing. Use this period of calm to restore your spent energies.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to share the credit for that project you're working on. But there'll be enough credit to go around, and your efforts will be recognized and rewarded.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Details need to be dealt with before you can move on to another area. Make sure you don't leave any loose ends that could later cause everything to unravel.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) News about a change in the workplace carries with it a challenge you could find difficult to resist. Check it out. It could be what you've been waiting for.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Allowing your artistic nature full expression will help restore your spirits and will put you in the mood to take on that new career challenge. A Libra creates excitement.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Expect to happily plunge right into a hectic social whirl starting at week's end. Your aspects favor new friendships as well as the strengthening of old relationships.
BORN THIS WEEK: Like St. Patrick (who was also born this week), your spiritual strength is an inspiration to others.
